

Treasurer David Damschen (UT)

David Damschen was appointed as Utah's 25th state treasurer by Utah Governor Gary Herbert on December 11, 2015 to complete the final year of his predecessor's term, and was re-elected on November 8, 2016.

As state treasurer, David is responsible for the state's banking, cash and debt management, investment of public funds (including the $12 billion Public Treasurers' Investment Fund), and administration of Utah's Unclaimed Property Division.

David also serves on seventeen governing boards and commissions, including Utah Retirement Systems, the Utah State Bonding Commission, the School and Institutional Trust Fund, Utah Housing Corporation, Permanent Community Impact Board, Utah Navajo Trust Fund, and the Utah Capital Investment Board.

Prior to becoming state treasurer, David served for seven years as Utah's chief deputy state treasurer.

Before entering public service, David was Senior Vice President and Director of Treasury Management Services at American West Bank. He spent most of his 20 years in the banking industry in the institutional trust & custody, treasury management, and retail divisions of U.S. Bank.

A veteran of the U.S. Coast Guard, David holds a degree in finance from the University of Washington's Foster School of Business and the Certified Treasury Professional (CTP) credential. He was inducted into the University of Washington's chapter of Beta Gamma Sigma.

He is a past president of the Association for Financial Professionals of Utah, and spends his winter weekends serving as a volunteer member of the Powder Mountain Ski Patrol. David and his wife Jody raised their three children in Layton, Utah.

Matt Hoekstra, Principal, Williams & Jensen

Matthew Hoekstra joined Williams and Jensen in 2007 and became a Principal in 2016. Mr. Hoekstra represents clients before Congress and the Administration on healthcare, tax, energy, financial services, and other matters.

Mr. Hoekstra has worked with Fortune 500 companies, leading trade associations and universities to develop and execute legislative strategies and serves as a resident political expert for clients. He served in a volunteer capacity at the 2008, 2012 and 2016 Republican National Conventions, serving as a liaison to media outlets, working with the Rules Committee, and assisting with external affairs. Over the last decade, Mr. Hoekstra has also played a role in a variety of campaigns, and has played a leadership role in several election deployments.

Prior to his time in Washington, Mr. Hoekstra was an All-American, nationally ranked chess player. He has been a guest lecturer at Duke University. Mr. Hoekstra holds a degree in Political Science and has also completed work in the field of Latin American Studies.