Welcome to the 2017 National Institute of Public Finance

From the NIPF Co-Chairs

Welcome to the 2017 National Institute of Public Finance (NIPF).

In the ever-changing environment of public treasury management, the Institute is integral to equipping treasury professionals with the latest tools to best meet fiduciary responsibilities. With the synthesis of strategies from the nation's top leaders in public finance, the 2017 NIPF promises to be a rich learning experience with immediate application.

A special thank you goes to the NIPF Board of Trustees, advisory boards, distinguished faculty, speakers, and staff for building a powerful curriculum and program. Their dedication, expertise, and hard work have led to the highly regarded and exclusive Certificate in Public Treasury Management.

We also would like to thank Pepperdine University and the Graziadio School of Business and Management for their tremendous support and partnership, and for providing an outstanding and beautiful academic environment.

We thank you for being a part of the 2017 NIPF and trust you will find it to be an invaluable experience. We encourage you to engage this unique opportunity to learn, discuss, collaborate and share best practices as we work together to build sustainable futures across our nation.

From the President

I am pleased and honored to welcome our esteemed speakers and attendees to the National Institute of Public Finance and Certificate in Public Treasury Management program hosted by the Pepperdine Graziadio School of Business and Management.

Public finance and treasury professionals must rely on financial policies and programs that best protect and benefit their communities and constituencies. As one of California's leading academic institutions, our desire is to expand the discourse on the challenges facing these individuals, including implementation of sound investment practices, debt management and greater oversight of employee pensions. Today, we have the privilege of learning strategies and best practices from some of the most experienced and respected public finance, academic and private sector leaders from across the nation.

I sincerely hope you will enjoy your time at Pepperdine's beautiful campus in Malibu, with its stunning vistas overlooking the Pacific Ocean. I encourage you to meet the professors, students, staff, and friends who make up our community and learn more about the intellectual and spiritual life that we share. When you do, I'm confident you will leave with a deep appreciation for the "Pepperdine difference."

Thank you for attending.

Welcome to the 2017 National Institute of Public Finance

From the Dean

It is my pleasure to warmly welcome you to our beautiful Malibu campus for the National Institute of Public Finance conference and Certificate in Public Treasury Management (CPTM) program, held in partnership with the Pepperdine Graziadio School of Business and Management.

The program promises to be a dynamic, thought-provoking opportunity to learn more about public finance issues -- and the best practices to address those challenges -- from the foremost experts in the industry and academia.

As local, state and federal governments grapple with unfunded mandates, pension obligations and the pressures of balancing investment and transactions, there is a pressing need for highly skilled, dedicated and ethical public servants who can provide sound fiscal management. Your attendance at this program is a testament to your commitment to protect the public's best interests by maintaining the highest standards to safeguard their finances and treasury.

This year's program features some of the greatest minds in public finance, including our keynote speaker, former U.S. Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin. At the conclusion of these three days, I trust you will depart armed with knowledge of novel, innovative approaches from your peers and newly inspired about your critical contribution to public finance.

And take a few minutes to enjoy our California beaches!

PUTTING THE PIECES TOGETHER: OVERALL PORTFOLIO CONSTRUCTION AND RISK MANAGEMENT RESOURCES

10:30 A.M.–11:45 A.M. · INVESTMENTS AND PENSIONS

Asset allocation is the primary determinant of an institution's long term investment performance. Asset allocation balances risk and reward through the apportionment of a portfolio's assets between investment categories to optimize an institution's goals, risk tolerance and investment horizon. In today's low return environment most major asset categories are priced at historically high levels. This makes asset allocation arguably more important than ever. Fortunately, boards and fiduciaries have more tools at their disposal to design the foundation for investment programs.

ENHANCED ALPHA THROUGH OPERATIONAL EXCELLENCE

10:30 A.M.–11:45 A.M. · EXECUTIVE TREASURY MANAGEMENT

The role of the custodian continues to evolve as the environment in which both clients and providers operate becomes more complex, time-sensitive, and data intensive. More and more, asset owners are evaluating their investment management operations with the goal to increase alpha and net of fee returns. This session covers how today's custodians are leveraging technology and processes to provide more and quicker access to data to empower their clients to make informed and timely decisions. Insourcing of investment management is a growing trend that organizations are embracing to reduce costs and increase investment returns. While the concept is easy to understand, the complexity lies in the ability to execute the strategy.

PROCURE TO PAY STRAIGHT THROUGH PROCESSING: PIPE DREAM OR REALITY

1:00 P.M.–2:30 P.M. · EXECUTIVE TREASURY MANAGEMENT

The demands on government treasury, accounts payable/accounts receivable staffs, and related operations have never been greater. Changing consumer payments expectations are fueling new payment technologies and a need to interact differently with the largest segments of the U.S. population. Additionally, increasing pressures to better manage growing transaction volume and the drive for obtaining real-time financial information is intensifying at the same time as the percentage of government retirement eligible employees is increasing.

AP solutions that operate holistically on singular or integrated platforms make it easier to deliver and make use of real-time data. Process and electronic payments automation increases transparency, improves efficiencies, and reduces risk. Finally, increasingly electronic payments are also susceptible to innovative fraud schemes and organizations need to improve their “battle armor”.

This session focuses on better understanding the changing payment landscape, including the drivers and practical steps you can take to accelerate moving from manual/paper to automated/electronic processes and equipping your teams to recognize and mitigate the latest electronic fraud attacks.

SURVIVING AND THRIVING IN THE NEW LIQUIDITY LANDSCAPE

2:45 P.M.–4:15 P.M. · EXECUTIVE TREASURY MANAGEMENT

With the SEC's money market reform in the rearview mirror, a new era of liquidity management has emerged, reshaping the way public-finance officers must think about managing their cash. Whether you are managing your liquidity vehicles internally, or working with an outside manager, you are faced with new (but similar) challenges such as: what are my liquidity needs, how do I take appropriate risk to optimize yield, what type of commercial paper programs am I buying, and how would my portfolio perform in a stressed environment.

The complexity of managing cash in this new environment can overwhelm public finance officers, as there are often conflicting opinions as to how to best put public cash to work. In addition, many managers are faced with the dual mandate of implementing more stringent risk controls, while delivering a higher yield. This session will feature an open and vibrant discussion on how to survive and thrive in this new liquidity landscape.

UNCLAIMED PROPERTY BEST PRACTICES: DATA SECURITY

1:00 P.M.–2:45 P.M. · EXECUTIVE TREASURY MANAGEMENT

With an increasing number of high profile data security breaches occurring over the course of the past few years, there are significant implications for unclaimed property programs across the country. Innovations in technology allow for increased controls and authentication opportunities that greatly reduce the risk of a data breaches and fraudulent claims. In addition to leveraging technology, it is important that program administrators develop and maintain dual controls that reduce the ability for manual data manipulation, and memorialize actions and procedures associated with claims payment and holder reporting. Concerns regarding data security have practical effects on unclaimed property examinations. Coordination of third party auditors and states can assist in reducing conflict with holders under audit. Establishing mandatory encryption requirements and disclosures will assist programs in alleviating the data security concerns of holders.

LEVERAGING YOUR 529 PLAN: TRENDS IN COLLEGE SAVINGS

3:00 P.M.–4:30 P.M. · EXECUTIVE TREASURY MANAGEMENT

529 plans have been helping American families achieve their college dreams since 1996. Twenty years on, nearly every State and the District of Columbia is a sponsor of at least one 529 plan created with goal of making saving for college easier for their State's residents. The 529 industry has primarily focused on outreach and marketing to American families – reaching the parents and guardians of future college students. This is evolving. Recent trends indicate the use of 529 plans as a tool used by State governments, municipalities and community organizations in order to foster engagement and create savings behaviors within low income families, and as a tool being used by employers to recruit and retain high valued millennial employees. And States and their program managers are reaching out to target markets and utilizing data and metrics to optimize their outreach efforts. Join this session for a vibrant discussion of these latest trends.

Robert E. Rubin

Co-Chairman, Council on Foreign Relations;
70th United States Secretary of the Treasury

Robert E. Rubin began his career in finance at Goldman, Sachs & Company in New York City in 1966. Mr. Rubin served as Vice-Chairman and Co-Chief Operating Officer from 1987-1990 and as Co-Senior Partner and Co-Chairman from 1990-1992. Before joining Goldman, he was an attorney at the firm of Cleary, Gottlieb, Steen & Hamilton in New York City from 1964-1966.

Long active in public affairs, Mr. Rubin joined the Clinton Administration in 1993 as Assistant to the President for Economic Policy and as Director of the newly-created National Economic Council. At the NEC, he coordinated economic policy recommendations to the President and monitored the implementation of the President's economic policy goals.

In January 1995, Mr. Rubin was appointed as our nation's 70th Secretary of the Treasury. He served for 4-1/2 years until July 1999, where he was involved in balancing the federal budget; opening trade policy to further globalization; acting to stem financial crises in Mexico, Asia and Russia; helping to resolve the impasse over the public debt limit; and guiding sensible reforms at the Internal Revenue Service.

From 1999 to 2009, Mr. Rubin served as a member of the Board of Directors at Citigroup and as a senior advisor to the company. In that capacity, he worked extensively with the firm's clients around the world.

Mr. Rubin is one of the founders of The Hamilton Project, an economic policy project housed at the Brookings Institution that offers a strategic vision and innovative policy proposals on how to create a growing economy that benefits more Americans.

Mr. Rubin is the author of In An Uncertain World: Tough Choices from Wall Street to Washington [Random House, 2003, with Jacob Weisberg], which was a New York Times bestseller as well as being named one of Business Week's ten best business books of the year.

Mr. Rubin is Co-Chairman of the Council on Foreign Relations, a member of the Boards of Trustees at the Mount Sinai Health System, and Chairman of the Board of the Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC), which is the nation's leading community development support organization with 38 offices nationwide. In June 2014, he completed a 12-year term as a member of the Harvard Corporation and is now a member of its Finance Committee. Mr. Rubin joined Centerview Partners in 2010 as a senior counselor of the firm. In his role at Centerview, he serves as a sounding board and advisor to clients across the firm's various activities, bringing years of experience in finance and public policy.

Mr. Rubin graduated summa cum laude from Harvard College in 1960 with an A.B. in economics. He received a L.L.B. from Yale Law School in 1964 and attended the London School of Economics. He has received honorary degrees from Harvard, Yale, Columbia and other universities. He was born in New York City in 1938 and is married to Judith Oxenberg Rubin, who served as the New York City Commissioner of Protocol for four years under Mayor David Dinkins. The Rubins have two adult sons, James and Philip.
